BRITISH SOLDIERS SEE NO PEACE YET

Man Behind the Gun Thinks War Will End Only When Allies Are Triumphant.

EXPECTS ANOTHER YEAR

Troops Declare England Never Was So Equal to the Occa-

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, Dec. 15 (Delayed) .-The man behind the gun doesn't think in early peace is coming from Germany's proposals. He believes the var will end only after the most vigorous offensive by the 2allies has lealt the enemy a severe blow.

The United Press correspondent got this answer today after a visit up and down the front line trenches. It was made with the idea of finding whether there was any difference of opinion between statesmen, who sit on platforms, diplomats, who gather about green tables-and the men pendent discovered an unanimous belief that England never was so ready and equal to the occasion as now; her strength increases daily. These are the opinions of men, not sitting in warm offices far behind the lines, nor non-combatants who sip drinks and fight battles with pencils on the tablecloth, but of ordinary British subjects on the actual firing line—and actually under fire at the moment they expressed them. They are the opinions of ordinary soldiers in the trenches.

Moreover, the United Press corre

Seen Another Year. At one point less than thirty-five feet from the enemy, I asked a Scottish private: "What do you think about peace?"

After a moment's reflection he re-"Well, I think another year will about finish it." I explained what I meant was more about the Kaiser's peace proposals than the general view. "Oh, that's what you mean." "It seems to me like he's try ing to pull our leg a bit. So little impressed had this soldier ben by the Kaiser's peace plan that

No One Excited.

His case was typical. Nobody ap peared the least excited over the German peace move. No one took it seriously. All day the British had been mauling the opposing trenches with sixty-pound trench bombs. Germans retaliated in lively fashion for perhaps twenty minutes. The Tom-"These are plum puddings they're putting over," one explained. "They make a bit of noise, don't they? Any way, they can't keep it up long. Leaving the trenches, the United Press correspondent took to an inviting dugout, descending a deep and steep ladder and entering a narrow.

Early Crush at Polls Presages Greatest Ballot City Has Ever Cast.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—Boston today le leciding the question of prohibition, while the whole country looks on watching to see if the growing tide of sentiment which has swept the na tion will engulf the Hub.

After the most momentous cam paign on the liquor license question this city has ever known, after weeks of effort on the part of "Billy" Sunday and many prominent citizens on behalf of prohibition, and bitter an tagonism from the liquor forces throughout the city, Boston's population went to the polls today to finally decide whether the city shall "wet" or "dry" in 1917.

Early Crush at Polis

An early crush at the polls in all parts of the city presaged the greatest vote the city has ever known. Long before 8 o'clock thousands of votes had been cast. Betting odds today stood at 5 to 2
